

National Youth Theatre Summer Season 2009, London

The National Youth Theatre is a charity which aims to develop an interest in Theatre among young people age 13-21 throughout the UK.

This year 4000 applicants competed for five hundred NYT places. Each year students from LGGS go through the rigorous preparation and audition process and we are always delighted to find that at least one student is accepted.

This year, we had record numbers, five of our Drama and Theatre students auditioned successfully and are now looking forward to their London experience. They will do intensive workshops in theatre skills to equip them for an ensemble performance at the end of their two weeks in London.

After their course, they became eligible to audition for future company productions. Here at LGGS, we all wish them a great experience at NYT and congratulate them on a superb achievement!
